Where We Stand

At Bloomfield Hall we aim to be an effective school providing a quality environment for pupils to develop and achieve a high standard of education, to be happy, to have a good self-image, to be a good citizen and to set the foundations needed for adult life.

We aim to do this by:

having high expectations of each child, helping children to develop lively, enquiring minds so they can acquire the knowledge and skills needed throughout their lives, and to be responsible for their own learning, providing equal opportunities for all our children and to differentiate their learning as appropriate, fostering respect and tolerance for the religious beliefs, cultural differences and ways of life of others, developing in each pupil a feeling of self-worth, helping children to understand the importance of being a good citizen and their duty in the world as a whole, having well qualified, caring, happy staff who support each other and work together as a team to achieve all these aims.
